Overdue Fines
Overdue fines	A	per overdue notice	E	No			$3.70			A growing number of Australian public libraries are removing fines for overdue items. This is in line with the global movement to make libraries more accessible for all people in our community. There have been no library fines for overdue items in the Northern Territory for some years. Libraries Tasmania and Libraries ACT have introduced a no-fine approach across their jurisdictions. In other states, an increasing number of library services have removed overdue fines. In our region this includes Wagga, Wodonga and Wangaratta Libraries. A statement by the Australian Library and Information association provides a rationale for the removal of overdue fines: https://www.alia.org.au/alia-australian-public-library-alliance-apla-statement-fines-overdue-items-australian-public . This includes the administrative cost of collecting fines being greater than the revenue received and that it appears that the removal of overdue fines encourages the return of lost and late items rather than acts as a deterrent. The removal of overdues would be accompanied by a range of strategies to ensure items are returned in a timely manner including: Implement 'support to comply' process that uses restrictions on membership as a lever rather than overdue fines, Maintain capacity to recover costs for lost items, Reminder email and SMS alerts for borrowers to return or renew items. In March 2020 due to COVID lockdowns and subsequent reduction of library services overdue fees at Albury Libraries were waived. This was accompanied by automatic renewals of Library materials and SMS and email alerts to Library borrowers. The loss of income is minor (overdue fee income was estimated at $4000 in 2020/21) and a recent increase in NSW core funding for Public Libraries more than offsets this decrease in income.
